

“The military is not a social welfare agency, it’s not a jobs program” - former Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney

Only 12% of male veterans and 6% of female veterans made any use of skills learned in the military in their civilian jobs according to military-funded research by Ohio State University. Skills learned in the military were primarily useful only for military jobs.

]The unemployment rate for veterans between 20 and 24 years old was 16 percent in 2005.

Studies have found that on average, veterans earn less than non-veterans. The average veteran earns between 11% and 19% less than non-veterans from comparable socioeconomic backgrounds.

1/3rd of the homeless population in the United States are military veterans.

In a 1999 military survey, only half of all military members (including officers) said they were satisfied with their training and job assignments, and only 22.7% were satisfied with their basic pay.
